

Awards presented at the National Convention

Outstanding Student Chapter Award

At the national convention in Los Angeles, the Outstanding Student Chapter Award was presented to Ball State University, their student chapter president Sarah Fuhs, and their advisor Jeffrey Carter for the unique opportunities they have offered student members through a very generous grant they received. In recognition of their accomplishments, they received a plaque, a monetary award of $250, and $200 to help defray travel costs to accept the award at the convention.

Two Honorable Mention awards were also given. Mansfield University, their president Natalie True, and advisor Peggy Dettwiler received an honorable mention for their creative fundraising events and meeting ideas. University of North Texas at Denton, their president Joshua Taylor and their advisor Alan McClung received an honorable mention for their outstanding enrichment series they developed for their membership. Each recipient of the Honorable Mention awards was presented with plaques to commemorate their achievements.

Congratulations to these three student chapters for receiving these awards and to all student chapters who are developing unique, creative, and informative activities to promote choral music for their membership, their colleges, and their communities. ACDA is proud of you.
