Overview: The first National Conference on Middle School/Junior High Choral Music is designed to celebrate the successes we experience in our classrooms and to articulate the challenges. Because quality research should influence practice, we are providing researchers a forum in which to share their findings with middle school/junior high choral music teachers. Researchers will be asked to participate in a roundtable setting to develop an agenda for future research projects related to the middle school/ junior choral music classroom. Insights and support will include members of the Conference Research Committee, as well as Dr. Judy Bowers, Florida State University and Dr. Jessica Napoles, University of Utah.
