

Baroque Music History Search Committee
Job Ad
Contact Person: Dr. Eileen M. Hayes, Eileen.hayes@unt.edu
(940) 565-3761
September 23, 2009

University of North Texas –Assistant Professor in Music History. Full-time, tenure-track Assistant Professor; salary commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Responsibilities: to publish consistently in the aforementioned area of specialty; to teach undergraduate and graduate courses in European baroque music, to teach undergraduate courses in the music core curriculum and/or courses for the non-major, with likely assignment to participation in the Honors College; to advise doctoral dissertations, documents for the DMA, and masters and undergraduate theses; to carry out service at the level of the division, college, and university. The successful candidate will be expected to collaborate with faculty members from other divisions within the College, especially those involved with the CoM's award-winning program in early music performance.

Qualifications: Ph.D. or equivalent degree in musicology/music history by time of appointment; record of significant research in European Baroque music and evidence of effective teaching.

Start date: August 2010.

Ranked by U.S. News and World Report among the top ten "Up and Coming" public national universities, the University of North Texas is an emerging research university with 50 Ph.D. and 111 Masters Degree programs. Located in the Dallas-Fort Worth Metroplex, UNT has an enrollment of more 36,000 students.

Applications must be submitted online:

<http://facultyjobs.unt.edu/applicants/Central?quickFind-50616>. Please attach or upload: CV, letter of interest, three letters of reference, and one sample of scholarly work. Transcripts and additional materials may be requested at a later time.

Review of applications begins November 24, 2009 and will continue until the search is closed. For inquiries contact: Eileen M. Hayes, Chair, Music History, Theory, and Ethnomusicology. E-mail: Eileen.hayes@unt.edu.

The University of North Texas is an AA/ADA/EOE committed to cultural diversity in its educational programs.